Foreword

Most believers are not losing the battle because Satan is stronger than they are—they are losing because they no longer know what deserves their attention.

That statement may sound controversial, but it deserves careful thought.

Many Christians spend hours each day consuming content, responding to notifications, chasing opportunities, and filling every quiet moment with activity. Yet, despite all this movement, many confess that they are praying less, reading the Scriptures less, hearing God's voice less clearly, and living with less spiritual fire than they once did.

The tragedy is not always open rebellion against God. More often, it is subtle distraction.

In this timely teaching, Pastor P. Daniel Olawande exposes one of the enemy's oldest strategies. Satan rarely begins by asking believers to abandon Christ. Instead, he slowly redirects their attention—from purpose to pressure, from calling to comparison, from devotion to distraction. A believer who loses focus may still appear spiritually active while gradually drifting away from the very assignment God has given.

One of the greatest strengths of this message is its honesty. Rather than placing all the blame on technology or social media, Pastor Daniel leads us deeper. He reveals that distraction operates in layers. What appears to be a problem with a phone screen may actually be rooted in unresolved emotions or uncertainty about identity and calling. Until those deeper issues are confronted, the cycle simply repeats itself.

Perhaps the most refreshing part of this message is that it does not merely diagnose the problem—it offers a biblical pathway to freedom. Through practical disciplines such as guarding the first moments of the day, laying aside unnecessary weights, refusing comparison, and fixing our gaze upon Jesus Christ, the preacher reminds us that lasting focus is not achieved through willpower alone but through intentional communion with God.

As editors at LivingSermons, our responsibility is not to improve the preacher's message but to preserve it faithfully while presenting it in a format that is clear, readable, and accessible to believers around the world. Every effort has been made to retain Pastor Daniel Olawande's voice, passion, and spiritual emphasis while carefully refining grammar, punctuation, formatting, and Scripture references for a smooth reading experience.

As you read these pages, resist the temptation to rush through them. Read prayerfully. Pause often. Examine your own life honestly before the Lord. Ask yourself where your attention has been going, what has been competing with your devotion, and whether your spiritual fire has become scattered.

Our prayer is that this message will do more than inform you—it will realign you. May the Holy Spirit restore your focus, strengthen your discipline, and rekindle your passion for Christ until your life once again burns brightly for His glory.

Remain focused. Remain faithful. Stay on fire.

Introduction

The greatest victories and the greatest losses in the life of a believer often begin with one simple decision—where attention is placed. Many believers are not defeated because they have abandoned God, but because their focus has gradually shifted away from Him.

In this teaching, Pastor P. Daniel Olawande exposes one of Satan's oldest strategies: distraction. He reveals how the enemy keeps believers spiritually scattered, how distraction works in layers, and how a focused life honors God and advances divine purpose.

Hi, good day.

Welcome to LIT Episodes.

I'm excited to be back here again today to share with you what the Lord is doing through His life-transforming Word via LIT Episodes.

It has been powerful. It has been tremendous, full of impact and testimonies. I can't wait to hear yours.

Thank you for what you do. Thank you for being here week after week, and thank you for sharing these teachings with your friends and family. Don't stop doing that. Keep sharing. Everybody must come into this light.

Opening Prayer

Father, in the name of Jesus, we thank You for another great time in Your presence. Thank You for the opportunity to share Your Word with Your people. Thank You for the LIT Tribe. Thank You for the LIT House members. Thank You, Almighty God.

Father, today we pray that Your Word will come with power. Let there be transformation, illumination, and grace, in the name of Jesus.

Thank You, Father.

In Jesus' name we pray. Amen.

Praise God.

CHAPTER ONE

The Enemy Does Not Need to Destroy You

Today, I'm going to be sharing something very deep with you. I'm teaching on Breaking the Cycle of Distraction. My phone is here, and I can tell you that this is one of the greatest distractions in the life of many believers. Today, we're going to deal with breaking the cycle of distraction.

I want to help you reclaim your focus for the things that matter most. The root cause of distraction in your spiritual life is the major problem that must be addressed. If we can identify the root cause of your distraction, it becomes easier to deal with it.

Not only will we identify that root cause, but we are also going to break the cycle that keeps you spiritually scattered and build a focused life that honors God and advances purpose. Fasten your seat belt because we're about to go on a very deep journey.

Let me say this to you:

The enemy doesn't need to destroy you. He only needs to distract you.

The enemy doesn't need to destroy you. He only needs to distract you.

A distracted believer is a defeated believer.

A distracted believer is a defeated believer.

Do you know the problem?

Many distracted believers don't even know they have lost ground.

You haven't backslidden.

You haven't walked away from God.

You're simply scattered.

Hear me:

A scattered fire doesn't burn anything.

A scattered fire has no impact.

Distraction is a strategy—not an accident.

The devil is extremely strategic.

The enemy is not creative.

He is consistent.

Did you hear that?

The enemy is not creative.

He is simply consistent. He consistently works to make sure that you do not remain consistent. The enemy is consistent in ensuring that you are not consistent. What the enemy is fighting in your journey is your consistency.

So he is consistent at making sure you are not.

The Devil's Oldest Strategy

The oldest strategy of the devil is diversion.

Distraction.

Look at Genesis 3.

The serpent did not attack Adam and Eve with force. Instead, he redirected their attention from what God had said to what they thought they were missing. He asked them if God had really said they should not eat of the tree.

Then he suggested that God was withholding something good from them. He made them focus on what they did not have instead of what God had already commanded.

God had said, "Do not eat of this tree."

The devil shifted their attention to what they would supposedly gain if they disobeyed. He said their eyes would be opened. Suddenly, they began to desire what they had never desired before. The strategy has never changed.

He doesn't necessarily need you to become an atheist. He doesn't necessarily need you to commit a scandalous sin. He doesn't necessarily need you to fall into fornication. For some people, he tries those things. But for a serious believer, here's what he does:

- He keeps you busy with everything except what God called you to do.
- He fills your life with activity.
- He presents opportunities.
- He gives you alternatives.
- He causes you to keep asking,

"What if?"

"What if I try this?"

"What if I'm missing something?"

Eventually, you lose focus on what God actually called you to do.

The Bible says:

"Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour." — 1 Peter 5:8 (KJV)

Have you ever watched a wildlife documentary?

Watch how lions hunt.

The animals are running everywhere.

The lion stays hidden.

Watching.

Waiting.

Watching.

Waiting.

Then it finds the exact moment when one animal stops paying attention.

That is when it strikes.

How does the enemy create that moment?

Through distraction. Distraction creates the opportunity for attack. One animal looks away for just a moment. That moment becomes its downfall. That is exactly how the enemy operates.

CHAPTER TWO

The Three Layers of Distraction

There are three layers of distraction.

1. Surface Distraction

This includes your phone.

Social media.

Entertainment.

Business.

These are the most visible distractions and the easiest to identify.

But hear me carefully.

Addressing only the surface never breaks the cycle.

You may decide,

"I won't touch my phone again immediately after waking up."

You succeed for one week.

The following week you wake up and think, "Let me quickly check who called me."

"I was expecting a message before I slept."

You check your phone. Three hours later, you're still there.

Then you decide, "I won't watch movies anymore."

A few days later you say, "Let me just relax a little."

The cycle begins again.

Why?

Because you only dealt with the surface. You never broke the cycle.

2. Emotional Distraction

The second layer is emotional distraction.

This includes:

- Anxiety
- Offence
- Unforgiveness
- Comparison

These distractions are dangerous because you often feel justified in carrying them.

Let me explain. Suppose jealousy enters your heart. You open Instagram and begin scrolling through someone's page.

You keep scrolling.

Scrolling.

Scrolling.

You think you're simply browsing.

You're not.

You're worrying.

You see someone with one million followers.

You begin comparing yourself.

You thought you were simply using social media.

No.

Something deeper is happening.

You're measuring yourself against someone else.

You are online, not because you need information, but because comparison is driving you.

That is emotional distraction.

Here's another example.

Sometimes you think you're entertaining yourself.

You're not.

You're replaying an argument in your mind.

You're planning what you wish you had said.

You're preparing for another confrontation.

Listen carefully.

Emotional distraction consumes more spiritual energy than any screen.

It drains you.

Offence drains you.

Anxiety drains you.

Unforgiveness drains you.

Comparison drains you.

Emotional distractions consume people long before they realize it.

3. Identity Distraction

This is the deepest layer.

When you are unclear about who you are and what God has called you to do, everything begins to feel equally important.

You see someone making comedy skits online.

You think,

"Maybe I should start making skits."

Then you see another person selling products successfully.

You think,

"Maybe I should begin selling products."

Then you open TikTok.

You see someone dancing.

You think,

"Maybe that's what I should do."

You keep moving from one thing to another.

Anything that appears successful suddenly looks like your assignment.

Do you know the problem?

You are suffering from identity distraction.

Everything feels important.

And when everything feels important...

Nothing is truly important.

The person who knows the assignment is naturally resistant to distraction.

Why?

Because they have a reference point.

They know what matters.

They know where God is leading them.

Many people spend hours surfing the internet today, not because they genuinely want information, but because there is something inside them searching for identity.

You think you're gathering information.

Meanwhile, you're trying to satisfy something deeper.

There is disorientation happening within you.

Something is unsettled.

Something needs healing.

Something needs clarity.

I pray for you today:

May you break free from every layer of distraction—

the surface,

the emotional,

and the identity layer—in Jesus' name.

Amen.

Why Is the Cycle So Difficult to Break?

Why is the cycle of distraction so difficult to break?

Distraction Is Rewarded

Listen carefully.

Every notification. Every scroll. Every comfort mechanism.

Each one delivers a small release of dopamine. The brain gradually learns to prefer distraction over discipline. As you keep scrolling, there is a release of dopamine that reinforces the habit.

The more often it happens, the more naturally your mind begins to choose distraction instead of the discipline that produces lasting spiritual growth.

1. Distraction Is Rewarded

As you keep scrolling, laughing, and checking one thing after another, your brain begins to learn a dangerous pattern.

It starts to prefer distraction over discipline.

Why?

Because every notification, every scroll, and every comfort mechanism releases a small amount of dopamine. Something pleasurable is happening inside you, and over time your brain begins to crave that feeling.

Without realizing it, the brain starts choosing temporary comfort instead of lasting discipline.

2. Distraction Feels Productive

The second reason the cycle is difficult to break is because distraction often disguises itself as purpose.

Busyness masquerades as purpose. You think you are making progress simply because you are busy. But being busy is not the same as being fruitful. You can be active all day and accomplish nothing that truly matters.

Activity is not the same as fruitfulness. You can spend the entire day moving from one task to another and still produce nothing of eternal value. That is why distraction is dangerous.

It gives you the feeling that you are accomplishing something when, in reality, you are simply moving without meaningful progress.

3. Distraction Numbs Discomfort

Many people are distracted, not because they love distraction, but because they are trying to avoid pain.

Sometimes it is a difficult conversation.

Sometimes it is a challenging assignment.

Sometimes it is an uncomfortable truth.

You avoid admitting to yourself that you have become lazy.

You avoid telling yourself that you are not disciplined.

You avoid confronting the reality that you are not doing what is right.

Instead of having an honest conversation with yourself, you silence that conviction with distraction.

You tell yourself,

"At least I'm doing something."

Meanwhile, you are doing nothing that truly matters.

What Focus Actually Requires

The Bible says:

"Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God." — Hebrews 12:1–2 (KJV)

There are three requirements hidden in this passage.

1. Lay Aside Every Weight

You cannot add focus without removing distraction.

Notice the words:

"Let us lay aside..."

That is an active instruction.

It is deliberate.

Sometimes it is painful.

You have to throw some things away.

Notice that Scripture mentions weight before it mentions sin.

Not everything weighing you down is sinful.

Some things are simply weights.

They are good things that occupy the space meant for the best things.

They are not evil.

They are simply hindrances.

They prevent you from running freely.

They fill the place that belongs to God's highest purpose for your life.

You have to lay them aside.

Until you remove distractions, you cannot add focus.

2. Run Your Own Race

The Bible says we should run the race that is set before us.

Not someone else's race.

Everyone has a race.

Never forget this:

Comparison is the killer of your fire.

Comparison is one of the greatest killers of focus.

You compare yourself with someone else.

You compare your progress with another person's results.

Now, don't misunderstand me.

You can be inspired.

You can be encouraged.

But you must never compare yourself.

Everyone has a unique race.

When you run someone else's race, you will always feel behind because you were never designed to run it.

That is not your race.

But when you are running your own race, you know that God is with you.

That is why I call it grace.

When you are in your race, you are in your place.

You may not have every result yet.

You may not be where someone else is.

But if God placed you there, you can remain focused.

Stay where God has planted you.

Remain faithful to your assignment.

3. Fix Your Eyes on Jesus

The Scripture says:

"Looking unto Jesus..."

Focus is not primarily about what you remove.

It is about what you choose to look at.

What you continually fix your eyes upon determines your direction.

When Jesus becomes your focus, everything else finds its proper place.

I am looking unto Jesus.

Everything aligns.

I am not looking at everything else.

This is how the cycle of distraction is broken.

Lay aside every weight.

Define your race.

Then fix your gaze upon Jesus.

Remember what we said earlier.

There are three layers of distraction.

Many people only deal with the physical layer while ignoring the emotional layer beneath it.

When you remove every unnecessary weight, become clear about your assignment, and fix your eyes on Jesus, distraction begins to lose its power.

CHAPTER THREE

Practical Steps to Break the Cycle of Distraction

1. Audit Your Attention

Ask yourself an honest question. Where does your mind go when nothing is demanding your attention?

Pause for a moment. When there is no project...

No deadline...

No responsibility demanding your focus...

Where does your mind naturally travel?

That place reveals your current center. It shows what truly owns your attention.

Audit your attention. When nothing is competing for your thoughts, what occupies them?

Think about it carefully.

2. Identify Your Escape Patterns

What do you reach for when you become anxious?

What do you reach for when you become bored?

What do you reach for when you become uncomfortable?

Name it.

Own it.

Then intentionally replace it with a deeper connection to God.

Whenever anxiety comes...

Whenever boredom comes...

Whenever discomfort comes...

Ask yourself, "What am I reaching for?"

Identify it. Own it. Then intentionally choose God's presence instead.

3. Create Focus Rituals

Develop daily habits that strengthen your focus. Start your day with God before the world gains access to you. I have said this over and over again. Never begin your day with your phone.

Begin your day in prayer.

Begin your day with God.

Guard the first minutes of your day as though your life depends on them.

Let them become sacred moments.

Guard the first minutes.

Guard the first hour.

Let God direct your day from the very beginning.

Allow His presence to become the foundation upon which the rest of the day is built.

4. Define Your Three Non-Negotiables

Identify three spiritual practices that you will never compromise.

For me, they are simple.

I must pray.

I must study God's Word.

I must worship.

Those are my three non-negotiables.

I must sing unto the Lord.

I must pray.

I must hear God's Word—whether by reading it or listening to it.

Identify your own three non-negotiables.

Tell yourself,

"My day does not begin until these are done."

Do these things first.

Let everything else wait.

Sometimes I do not have enough time to read several chapters of the Bible.

But even if it is only one verse, my day must begin with God's Word.

Just one verse.

My day must start with the Word.

I always tell myself:

Before I hear the world, I must hear the Word.

That is how I begin my day.

When I wake up, I begin by singing.

I wake up saying,

"Father, thank You."

And I lift a song unto the Lord.

5. Practice Single-Tasking

Let it become your daily practice that the very first thing you do when you wake up is acknowledge God.

Wake up singing.

You can simply begin with a song like:

"Oh Glorious God, Beautiful King, Excellent God, I bow before You."

Can you rise from your bed singing?

Can you stand up and say,

"Father, thank You."

"Hallelujah!"

Start your day with a song.

Start your day with worship.

Start your day by acknowledging the Lord.

If you cannot read an entire chapter of the Bible because you woke up late, pick one verse.

Meditate on that one verse.

Read it repeatedly.

Rejoice over it.

Pray through it.

Worship the Lord with it.

Then continue with your day.

Define your three non-negotiables and do them first.

Let everything else follow.

Do One Thing at a Time

Practice single-tasking.

Do one thing at a time.

Let me encourage you.

We have spoken about this before, but I need to say it again.

Can you pray...

...and simply pray?

Not pray and chat.

I know there are moments during the day when you can keep praying while doing other activities.

You may be driving and praying.

You may be working while listening to a sermon.

You may be carrying out other responsibilities while remaining conscious of God's presence.

But that first dose of prayer in the morning should be different.

Drop your phone.

Pray.

Just pray.

Not pray and chat.

Not pray and keep checking what is happening online.

Glory to God.

Avoid multitasking when it comes to your most important spiritual moments.

Study...

...and simply study.

Read...

...and simply read.

Pray...

...and simply pray.

Worship...

...and simply worship.

That is spiritual discipline.

And let me tell you something.

It is one of the most productive habits you can ever develop.

I am telling you—it works.

Focus Is an Act of Worship

Are you aware that focus is an act of worship?

When you choose to focus on what God has called you to do, you are saying,

"Lord, Your assignment upon my life matters more than my comfort."

You are saying,

"I know there are many things competing for my attention, but what You have called me to do is more important than all of them."

That is worship.

Concentrated fire transforms everything. Scattered fire warms nothing. Scattered fire burns nothing. But concentrated fire changes everything.

When you focus on worship...

When you focus on studying God's Word...

When you focus on prayer...

When your whole heart is engaged...

You begin to journey in the Spirit. You begin to travel deeper into the things of God.
What a sweet fellowship!

Hear me.

You do not need more time.

You need more focus.

You need more focus.

Fight for Your Focus

The devil knows that a focused believer is an unstoppable force. That is why he works so hard to scatter you. Like I told you earlier, the devil is consistent in making sure that you are not consistent.

He is not creative.

He is simply consistent.

He will do everything possible to keep you from remaining faithful and focused.

Fight for your focus.

Reclaim your attention.

Fix your gaze on Jesus.

Address the three layers of distraction.

Ask yourself honest questions.

Is what I'm experiencing merely physical?

Is it surface distraction?

Is it emotional distraction?

Or is it identity distraction?

Am I doing what I'm doing because I am struggling with my identity?

Or am I simply careless and unfocused?

Examine your life honestly before God.

A Prayer for Focus

I pray for you in the name of Jesus.

May the fire of the Lord—the fire of holy focus—burn brightly within you.

May you break every cycle of distraction.

In the name of Jesus.

In the name of Jesus.

In the name of Jesus.

Amen.

A Final Counsel

As I close today, let me leave you with this counsel.

Start small.

Practice focus in little things.

Practice single-tasking.

Although multitasking has its place, I especially encourage single-tasking when it comes to spiritual matters.

When it is time to pray...

Pray.

Drop everything else.

When it is time to study your Bible...

Study.

When it is time to worship...

Worship.

Throughout the rest of the day, you may combine spiritual activities with your daily responsibilities.

But guard that first part of your day.

Whether it is the first thirty minutes...

Or the first hour...

During your morning devotion, give God your full attention.

One hundred percent focus.

Practice it consistently.

You will begin to see the results in your life, in the name of Jesus.

LIT Declaration

Say after me:

I will live LIT boldly.

I will lead LIT intentionally.

I will build LIT daily.

I am sent to carry the fire into my world.

Let's declare it again:

I will live LIT daily.

I will lead LIT intentionally.

I will build LIT boldly.

I am sent to carry the fire into my world.

Be intentional about your fire.

Closing Charge

Until I come your way again, stay LIT.

Maintain your focus.

This week, practice single-tasking—especially during your time with God.

Guard the first hour of your day.

Give God your undivided attention.

I pray that you will burn brightly.

I pray that you will remain on fire.

And I pray that you will cause a revolution in your generation, in the name of Jesus.

I want to say thank you to every member of the LIT Tribe and everyone in the LIT House.

Congratulations to you.

Keep doing well.

Keep doing amazing things.

Don't forget to share this message with everyone you know.

Share the video.

Share the audio. Let others burn also. Let others stay on fire. Until I come your way again...

Stay LIT.

God bless you.

Conclusion

Distraction is one of the enemy's oldest and most effective strategies. It rarely begins with obvious sin; instead, it quietly shifts our attention away from God's purpose until our spiritual fire begins to fade. Yet God has provided a way of escape. By laying aside every weight, running the race He has assigned, fixing our eyes on Jesus, and cultivating daily disciplines of prayer, worship, and the Word, we can live lives marked by unwavering focus.

May the Lord grant us grace to reject every form of distraction, remain faithful to our divine assignment, and burn brightly for His glory every day.

Amen.

About The Speaker

Pastor Daniel Olawande, widely known as P. Daniel, is an ordained minister in the Redeemed Christian Church of God (RCCG) and the Lead Pastor of RCCG The Envoys in Lagos, a youth-focused expression of the church marked by revival emphasis and strong apostolic teaching. He also serves in key national roles within RCCG's youth structure, including leadership within the Students and Corpers Ministry (CRM) and youth evangelism, with a clear mandate centered on raising a "burning generation" and stirring spiritual awakening among young people. His ministry combines preaching, mentorship, and large-scale revival gatherings, with a consistent focus on alignment, consecration, and purposeful living, making him a prominent voice among emerging Pentecostal leaders in Nigeria.

About Living Sermons

Our Vision

To become the world's largest digital platform for ebooks transcribed from live sermons, preserving and spreading the spoken Word of God across nations and generations.

Our Mission

At LivingSermons.com, our mission is to take the living voice of God spoken through His servants and transform it into accessible PDF resources, making salvation-centred truth available to the ends of the earth. We believe that the spoken Word carries divine power, and by preserving these messages in written form, we help extend their reach beyond pulpits, borders, and generations.

Why We Exist

Many life-changing sermons are preached and forgotten with time. We exist to preserve these divine utterances, making them available for study, meditation, discipleship, and spiritual growth. Through this work, we are committed to ensuring that no revelational truth is lost, but that every inspired message can continue to speak, heal, transform, and bring men into the knowledge of Christ.

Join Our Team

Let us preserve God's spoken Word together and take the Gospel further.

LivingSermons is raising Kingdom-minded volunteers across the world to help transform live sermons into lasting digital resources. If you have the burden to serve and the skill to contribute, there is a place for you.

Volunteer Opportunities

- Prayer Intercessors: Stand with us in prayer as we labour to spread God's Word across nations.
